International support

Tina Gullì has opened Studio Gullì America. Her story shows how Italian expertise can also succeed globally through innovation and resilience

June 27, 2024 Palazzo Mezzanotte in Milan hosted 14th edition of the Le Fonti Awards, an event that recognizes Italian excellence in various sectors. Among the evening's honorees, Tina Gullì was honored as professional of the year in consulting taxation. With her innovative and humane approach, Tina Gullì has managed to combine technical expertise and leadership, contributing to the growth of young professionals and startups entering the global. Her international vision, evidenced by the opening of Studio Gullì America, goes beyond traditional tax advice to include legal and social assistance for multicultural audiences.

In this context, its international expansion path could benefit from the tools offered by the U.S. immigration system, such as the Eb-1 visa, dedicated to high-level professionals. This visa, which is reserved for individuals with extraordinary, is divided into three main categories: Eb-1A, for those who demonstrate extraordinary abilities in fields such as science, art, business or sports; Eb-1B, for professors and researchers with academic experience; Eb-1C, for multinational managers and executives who have moved to the U.S. for equivalent roles. Studio Gullì's approach, is focusing on digitization, internationalization and sustainability, aligns with the opportunities offered by programs such as Eb-1. For professionals like you, this type of visa represents an opportunity to access the U.S. market and recognize your skills. This example highlights how Italian skills can also succeed internationally through innovation and resilience. Tina Gullì embodies this spirit with leadership capable of facing challenges and transforming them into opportunities for growth. Digital transformation, supply chain optimization, and sustainability are at the heart of her priorities, highlighting how innovation and dedication are key in tax consulting business.

Tina Gullì